A COMMUNITY SCREENING AND CONVERSATION

Launched in September as a Netflix original documentary short, “Heroin(e)” follows three women in Huntington, WV, as they fight the opioid epidemic in a city with an overdose rate 10 times the national average.

Following the screening will be a moderated panel discussion and audience Q&A with WVU representatives and local professionals currently working to address the opiate issue in the Morgantown area.

MODERATOR

Jeffrey Coben, MD |
Dean, WVU School of Public Health

Dr. Coben is the Associate Vice President for Health Affairs and Dean of the School of Public Health at West Virginia University. He is a tenured professor with joint appointments in the Schools of Public Health and Medicine.

PANELISTS

Laura Jones, MSW |
Director, Milan Puskar Health Right

Laura Jones is the director of Milan Puskar Health Right, a free and charitable clinic that provides primary care, harm reduction/syringe access and recovery coach services in Morgantown.

James Berry, DO |
Associate Professor, WVU School of Medicine

Dr. Berry is a board-certified addiction psychiatrist and associate professor with WVU. He is the Director of Addictions and Medical Director of WVU Medicine’s department of Behavioral Medicine and Psychiatry.

Catherine Yura, EdD |
Director, WVU Collegiate Recovery Program

Dr. Yura leads the WVU Collegiate Recovery Program, a program that supports students who seek a culture of recovery. She has contributed to the mental health services for 36 years as a licensed psychologist at WVU.

Edward Preston, JD |
Chief of Police, Morgantown WV

Chief Preston is the Northern District WV HIDTA Oversight Board Representative and a member of the Police Executive Research Forum and International Chiefs of Police Association.
